

Operation Job Search (12 May 2016): 3-Battlefield Phases to a Targeted Job Search

Bruce Benedict, the owner of Battlefield Resumes, developed the Battlefield Resume Methodology (BRM) to help veterans like himself obtain the jobs they want and deserve. He leveraged his 21 years of military service and formulated an easy to understand doctrine for veteran job seekers. The BRM helps applicants effortlessly make sense of the civilian workforce by understanding, adapting to, and exploiting the civilian hiring process. The BRM encourages applicants to use and leverage military tactics, techniques, and procedures when job searching, networking, resume writing, and interviewing. BRM focuses the applicants time and energy on a targeted job announcement, while developing a tactically-sound employment strategy based on phases of a military operation. Although Bruce's methodology is aggressive, he purposely built the BRM in an easy to understand step-by-step method that anyone can comprehend and follow (even non-veterans). The civilian world can feel unfamiliar and unforgiving, but if you use the BRM, you will quickly learn how to find the jobs for which you are qualified, while obtaining jobs at the highest salary possible.
